Ridley Eight Wins At Henley

The Ridley Eight, well ahead of Hampton Grammar School as they cross the finish line to win the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Trophy; emblematic of the British Schoolboy Championship, at Henley - on - Thames, July 4th, 1970

At about 7 p.m. on Saturday, last 4th July, Ted Pilgrim and I stood near The Champagne Tent in The Stewards' Enclosure immediately after the presentation of prizes at the 131st Annual Royal Regatta in Henley-on-Thames, England. Ted was hefting a large wooden case. In it lay the Princess Elizabeth Trophy, which had just been presented to the Ridley heavy eight-man crew. The occasion was far in context, if not in time, from the afternoon in May of 1966 when he and I had watched the school row in its first race, a trial work-out against another neophyte eight at the Henley course in St. Catharines. In five seasons, Ridley has gone from that scratch crew to boating two eights, a couple of fours, a pair and a singles — from a win over Stratford H.S. to holding the School Boy Championships of Canada, of the U.S.A. and of the U.K. in the same season.

We had been on the banks of the Thames in 1968, when the Ridley crew lost on the second day of the Regatta and the water was in extreme spate. This year, the weather was satisfactory and the river was normal. Our hotel, the Red Lion, which stands across from the boat-pens and in sight of the finish-line, was a Little Ridley for the week. A Canadian flag flew over the portico; the office and bar birds wore orange and black ribbons; and a photograph of the crew hung in the dining room. Ridley Old Boys, parents, boys and friends were in and out all day long, many having taken advantage of the Ridley charter flight. Another Little Ridley was The Compleat Angler Hotel at nearby Marlow.

The crew (Weinstein, Sanye, Verity, Schmon, Gidney, Longstaff, Rumble, Aziz at stroke, Holliday at cox and Quinn and Scott as spares) with Mr. and Mrs. Don Hunt and the coach, Neil Campbell and his daughter lived, as two years before, at the home of Mrs. Seed in Wargrave, a couple of miles away. Their dedicated training regime resulted spontaneously from the strict and knowledgeable direction of the last named. To Neil Campbell too much credit for the crew's successes can not be given, but he could not have brought them about without the heartwarming co-operation of every boy who rowed for Ridley. The eight have their individual gold-medals as tangible rewards. The rest of us have an increased pride in the school and in those who represented her.

Ridley drew a bye for the first day's (Wednesday's) racing. On the Thursday, we defeated Eton College, who had previously put out Pangbourne College, by 3½ lengths in the time of 7.07 for the one mile and 550 yard course. On Friday, Ridley won over Holy Spirit H.S. of the U.S.A. who also had drawn a first-round bye and had then defeated Emmanuel School. Our time for this race was 6.50 and the margin 4 lengths. On Saturday in the finals Ridley met Hampton Grammar School, the only other seed and the English favourites. Hampton had won over King's School, Chester, "easily" and Tiffin School by 3 2/3 lengths. Ridley's lead over Hampton was 2½ lengths, and the time was 7.06.

Since the Princess Elizabeth Cup was opened to overseas entries in 1964, it has been won four times by schools from the U.S.A. This year's victory is the first for a school from Canada, and from any Commonwealth country.

A slightly nerve-wracking element of doubt was introduced for the Ridley supporters on the Friday morning, when an oar-lock in the shell broke during a practice row. Would it happen again? It might. It didn't.

The Heavy Eight strain at the beginning of their race with Eton — Weinstein, Sanye, Verity, Schmon, Gidney, Longstaff, Rumble and the stroke, Aziz. Holliday is coxswain.

Among other supporters were the following. Probably some have been missed. If so, I apologise to them.

Len Cole (53), Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gooderham (13), Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Gooderham (41), their son and daughter, Henry and Gay, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gooderham (44), their daughter Sarah and son Peter (current boy), Mr. and Mrs. John Drope (42), Mr. and Mrs. Cro Taylor (40), Tim Taylor (68), Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Schmon (42), Mr. and Mrs. Kelly New (33), Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Sanye (P), Miss Linda Steinhoff, Allan Jarvis (46), Mrs. B. D. Feagan (P), Mr. and Mrs. Bill Vick (32), Major and Mrs. Jonathan Vick (61), Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Aylott (Staff), Chris Aylott (60), Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hopper (P), Mr. and Mrs. Wally Bratt (P), and sons Stephen and Michael (current boys), Dr. John Stewart (Staff), Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson (Staff), Mr. and Mrs. Purvis McDougall (54 and staff) Harry Mahon (Staff), Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Holliday (P) and their daughter, Dan Tucker (current boy), Bob Black (70), Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gidney (P), Mr. and Mrs. Jack Verity (42), Sam Anderson (45), Sam Woodruff (current boy), Miss Sandy Stevens (Staff) and her mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cronyn (24), Mr. and Mrs. Pat Daniel (45) and two sons, Tony Thres (46), Joe Penney (47), Col. Bob Rogers (27), Harry Lancaster (P), Charles Ashdown (P), Rick New (63), Mrs. C. L. Muir (P) and her son, Arthur Lang (49), David Lang, (52), Miss Allison Davies (F), Miss Joy Williams (Staff), Ian and Robert Gilroy (current boys), John Stubbs (62), Lord Montagu (45), Gordon Wilson (60), Major and Mrs. R. S. Cockburn (Staff), Michael Colston (49), and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McBride (Staff).

(The writer would like to mention that during the charter flight to Henley a collection taken up by the crew resulted in almost enough money to pay for the new set of Ayling oars used by the crew.—Editor).

In The Beginning . . .

Another year has rolled around (they roll ever faster it seems), and we are at the stage in the summer when we look forward more than aft. The achievements of 1969-1970 have been recorded and acclaimed (Ridleyridleybishopridleycollege-college . . .) and we try to find in our clouded crystal ball what lies ahead for us in the year to come.

The place has the familiar summer look — paint pots and step-ladders clutter the scene. The grounds are immaculate, though the ranks of elms have been thinned again. Large, muscular men have appeared in increasing numbers in anticipation of the World Rowing Regatta to take place next week.

If the school survives this invasion without drastic rebuilding, the most notable changes will be in Staff. Don Hunt, as most of you know, has relinquished his post as Chaplain to become Assistant to the Headmaster of the Lower School. The Reverend E. Jack Rose, B.A., L.S.T., Bishop's University, will be our new Chaplain. To take the place of Ross Morrow who will be absent for a year on a sabbatical and of Messrs Shipley, Braet and Roach who have resigned, the following men will join the Staff: Mr. W. K. L. Chipman, B.A., Bishop's University, to teach

History:

Mr. R. Allan Davis, B.A., Laurentian University, to teach French; Mr. A. J. Knowles, B.Sc., Ph.D., University of Waterloo, to teach Chemistry and Mathematics; Mr. A. L. Youngson, B.A., University of Saskatchewan, to teach English.

The following appointments have been made:

Mr. David R. Wilson is to be Acting Assistant Headmaster; Mr. M. R. Cooke is to be Dean of Residence as well as Housemaster of School House; Mr. George E. Lumsden is to be Head of the Modern Language Department; Mr. J. A. Wilson is to be Head of the Geography Department and Mr. A. M. Fowler, Acting Head of the Science Department.

I suppose this sounds much the same as it did in your day except that the names are different. To most of you now, a new year slides on the scene with no more fanfare than a slight headache. At Ridley, on the other hand, there is a tremendous build-up of anticipation and, for some, trepidation, as the kick-off time approaches. I wonder how many of you recall that first day in your life at Ridley. Do you remember? . . .

. . . Man, the Queen Elizabeth Way is crowded on Sundays — certainly is slow going. It can't be slow enough for me; in fact, I wish it'd stop altogether, except that Dad will start swearing again and that'll start Mom crying again . . . I think she's worse than I am . . . I sure wish I had started working on her before. When I tried that fit of hiccups and asthma this morning, she was ready to throw in the sponge, but it was too late, Dad paid the fees last week and wouldn't listen to us. Guess I'm hooked . . . Oh, oh, seventeen miles to St. Catharines; maybe if I got sick now I could put it off for a bit. It wouldn't be hard to fake it. My stomach's been jumping all day — I'll try holding my breath and then groaning . . .

It didn't work. Dad says the closest medical assistance will be at the Ridley Infirmary . . . Wonder what the nurse is like, I bet she'll just give me an aspirin and tell me to get lost. How can my parents send me to such a heartless place?

I wonder what Ridley's like now. I only saw it in the winter. It looked pretty good then except that I got sucked in by all that sports equipment jazz. Somehow, going away to school looked O.K. then, but now, . . . How could I have been so stupid as to say yes? . . .

Here's St. Catharines . . . I'd better start noticing the route for when I take off. We're going to go by Ontario Street. Dad says he needs a drink — I could do with one myself . . . That must be the Henley Course — wish I'd been here for the World Rowing — wish I'd seen Ridley win the Canadian Schoolboy Championship . . . maybe I can take up rowing and get to go to England — I bet they all had a ball . . . There goes another car with a white-faced kid in the back . . . His Dad looks pretty grim too — another sucker, probably handcuffed to the seat belt . . .

Ontario Street — that looks like a good way out of town. There's that old hotel we had lunch in when we came over for my interview. I bet the Headmaster used up all his smiles on me that day . . . Here we go over the bridge . . . If the worst comes to the worst, I can always jump off it — or threaten to. Maybe they would send me home then . . . There are the gates — they look sort of narrow; hope Dad can make it. It'd be a lousy way of starting school by dragging the gate up the driveway . . . We made it, and now I'm for it. Shall I start yelling or try the pathetic sob-in-the-throat bit?

Look at all those guys — they've all had new haircuts; and those characters who are doing the jovial act — must be masters. If only parents knew; I bet they're a bunch of sadists. Mom and Dad seem to have brightened up — must be the prospect of getting this over with, or maybe it's just an act. Anyway, I guess I'll just have to play along. . . .

That wasn't as bad as I thought. It was pretty awful for a moment but they've gone and I've met a couple of boys I knew at camp and at my old school. They're new too. Most of the Old Boys are still to come in — they're the guys who are dumb enough to come back to this place . . . I bet they give us an awful run-around. . . .

Supper wasn't too terrible though I had a job finding the Dining Hall . . . The noise around here is something else, and where do you go if you want to be alone? That barracks they call a dormitory has about as much privacy as a bus station, but there are a couple of pretty good guys in it who are new boys too . . . Maybe we can plan the Great Escape together. The Old Boys in our dorm are certainly snobs — they don't even talk to you except that one fellow. He's been darn helpful . . . He's already told me how to get myself measured for a spoon and where to get a bath ticket . . . I hope these fellows stop talking so I can get some sleep though I don't suppose I'll be able to; I'm so miserable. Dad and Mom will be home by now. I bet they were relieved to get rid of me . . .

That bell! I never heard such a racket, and practically before daybreak. What a horrible way to start a day and what a day! I don't even know where I'm supposed to go or what class I'm in, and I'm certainly not going to ask anyone; they might think I'm dumb or something . . . Oh, well, if I follow these characters, they'll probably lead me to some breakfast.

Well, it certainly wasn't any home-cooked meal but I have managed to keep it down though it'd serve my parents right if I got sick on the food here . . . Now where are we going? . . .

John and Cose Guest

Another game of follow-the-leader I guess . . . Of course, we're going to that chapel that the Headmaster showed us when we visited the school, when he told us all that junk about the super-organ and Ridley's wonderful singing. Hope I know what to do . . . This blue book seems to be the one to use . . . Look what some prisoner has written in front — "99 days to Christmas holidays" . . . Sounds like a sentence — for life . . . What's he saying? Hymn No. 469, first part . . . Here we go . . . "Lord behold us with Thy blessing!"

Your Support Raised Annual Giving to a New High Last Year $100,383

To our Branch Chairmen and all the enthusiastic members in the Branches who helped on our Telethons, our heartfelt thanks for your efforts. The figure of $100,383 raised by the Foundation Fund and the Scholarship Fund in the United States is the concrete result of your labours on behalf of the School.

Last year 23% of all known Old Boys contributed to the Funds. This year 30%.

Last year 15% of all known Past Parents contributed to the Funds. This year 16%.

Our increase in Old Boy contributors this year was 8%. Our increase in Past Parent contributors this year was 13%.

In addition, 381 Current Parents voluntarily contributed $42,900 to the Funds — a magnificent accomplishment on their part.

TO ALL OF YOU OUR MOST SINCERE THANKS.

The School continues to require your support if our costs are to be held down and our quality held up.

Think Seriously — Give Generously in the Year Ahead

For those of you who have not given for one reason or another, we ask you to examine your decision carefully. If this is done, we are sure you will realize that Ridley does deserve your support during the coming year.

Your Association Weekend

The highlights of the Week-End are listed on the inside front cover of this issue of Tiger. The programme is complete. All that is need now is your presence along with that of your wife or lady friend. All Association members are invited to attend all events.

The reunions featured this year are as follows:

The Class of 1945 — their 25th

The Class of 1960 — their 10th

The Class of 1965 — their 5th

For 1945 the Class Secretary is:

S. I. A. (Sam) Anderson — Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. 01810. (617-475-3977).

For 1960 the Class Secretary is:

James H. Belton — Station C, Box 4063, London, Ont. (Bus. 519-432-1161).

For 1965 the Class Secretary is:

John R. Anderson — 10 Parkway Forest Drive, Apt. 505, Willowdale 426, Ont. (416-491-5274).

You will have received the mailing giving you the details of the Week-End and asking you to make your reservations. PLEASE RETURN THE REPLY CARD TO US IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO ATTEND ALONG WITH YOUR CHEQUE SO THAT WE CAN RESERVE SEATS FOR YOU IN THE GREAT HALL FOR DINNER SATURDAY NIGHT.

And you younger Old Boys and those who are still young in spirit. There again will be a post-game dance for you in the Gym. There will be a good group playing for your dancing pleasure. Plan on attending if you want this event to be continued in the future.

The new movie covering a year at the School will be premiered two years late in the Assembly Hall at 1:00 p.m., and after the game at 4:30 p.m. Along with it will be shown 'Stroke' a movie made independently that covers the Ridley crew from Toronto to Henley and back. The Ridley movie has been produced through the kindness and generosity of Ontario Paper Co. Ltd.

A good Week-End is in store for you.

Third World Rowing Championships

International Good Will at Ridley

As a speaker once said, "I am a man of few words and short sentences". So be it. For the second time in three years; never was so much done for so many by so few in the interest of Ridley College.

From the 22nd of August until the 8th of September, the Upper School at Ridley played host to approximately half of the 632 oarsmen from 29 countries competing in the Third World Rowing Championship at the Canadian Henley course at St. Catharines. Two hundred and eighty-two oarsmen from fourteen countries filled the Upper School to capacity. The remainder of the oarsmen were quartered at Brock University.

The room number was 10. Not Downing Street but School House in the Upper School. The room to this door was open twenty-four hours a day for sixteen consecutive days.

Someone once described POWER as the ability to know, and to know that you know. All I can say is that sitting at a desk with three phones in front of you, two direct lines and one outside, I knew, and I made sure that I knew what I knew. Man that's POWER.

Number 10 was headquarters for the Ridley 'Camp'. (Excuse me, Mr. Headmaster). Periodically and out of necessity it was invaded by a Postmaster; Launderer; Interpreters; Bomar Security; Ridley's business administrator (Fred Wodchis); Ridley's waitresses (coffee, tea or milk and sandwiches); Ridley staff children (bug-eyed, curious, and helpful); news media personnel; projectionist, Bill Murray; team managers and officials from 14 different nations; Harry Mahon, our Ridley staff assistant, and last but not least and very infrequently (thank goodness) 282 oarsmen.

Ridley's facilities to offset the boredom of training and racing were varied and many were used. Such recreational areas as the tennis courts, squash courts, swimming pool, soccer fields and parked permanently in front of Merritt House was the British version of a croquet lawn. At night, movies, tuck shop and T.V. in Arthur Bishop House. The Reverend Jack Rose, our new Chaplain, came under 'Baptismal' fire in the Ridley Chapel for two Sunday mornings with a renowned International congregation.

I have been asked several times if one nation was any more friendly, outgoing or displayed more warmth in their greetings or general temperament. There most certainly was, but there is no way I am going to get involved in any international popularity contest. But I can say this unequivocally. They were all gentlemen in the true sense of the word from where I viewed the operations.

Of course there were many incidents and anecdotes which time nor space will allow here. Some were funny and some were peculiar. And that is what made it all so rewarding, satisfying and challenging. But I must confess that when I heard that St. Catharines had lost out in its bid for the Summer Games of 1972 — I was much relieved.

Carl Dorland (in shirt) the School's co-ordinator for the Third World Rowing Championships welcomes part of the Australian contingent to the School.

I would be very remiss in this article if I didn't say something about the Ridley staff under Mr. Hugh Smith's direction in the kitchen and dining room area and Mrs. Greble with her staff in the Houses. They all did a fantastic job in their own right to help make the oarsmen feel more at home. To put it succinctly and sincerely, the food was the best quality and quantity. And the long hours that the maids had to endure from dawn to past dusk was unbelievable and all without a whimper or sour look. You always hear that the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Well I saw it and I believe it.

The German Democratic Republic (East Germany) led the way on the final day of rowing with three gold and four silver medals. Not bad for a 26-man team whose average age in the prestige eight-man shell was 19 years of age. Other countries winning gold medals: West Germany, Denmark, Romania and the only winning non-European nation, Argentina.

If I was asked to recall the most memorable sight of the Third World Rowing Championships, I would have to say: the East Germans had edged the West Germans and both had received their respective awards. While waiting for the third place finishers to receive their awards, the East and West Germans, just to the right of the Grandstand, were interlocking their oars in order to get close enough to shake hands. There was certainly no 'Berlin Wall' on the site of the Old Welland Canal. So here is for less politics and more World sporting events to show people where the heart really lies.

C.D.

(Editor's Note: Carl Dorland was the Master in Charge of Facilities for the School during the championships. He did an absolutely first rate job in representing the School and looking after the 282 visiting oarsmen.)

Ridley College Women's Guild Report - 1969-70

Briefly the objects of the Women's Guild are to enlist and maintain the co-operation of the mothers, wives, sisters and guardians of all Ridleians, past and present; to bring them into closer touch with the School and to further in every way the interests of the School.

There are branches in the Toronto, Hamilton, London, Niagara Peninsula and Grand Valley areas. For those not connected with a branch, contact is made through the Field Secretary.

During the past year, the Ridley College Association was formed and all members of the Women's Guild are automatically members of this Association. Two members of the Guild have been appointed to their Executive Committee.

A donation of $850.00 from all the Guilds was made to the Scholarship Fund at the Annual Meeting in May, and this brings the Capital Fund for the Woman's Guild to $22,956.24.

Funds were raised through the sale of flight bags, duffle bags, scarves, parties and talent money.

Donations have been made by the various branches towards Chapel flowers, public speaking, choir, and debating prizes, Upper and Lower school libraries, magazines, and to the Burn Memorial Fund.

Members of the Niagara Peninsula and Hamilton Guilds arranged and provided for a Buffet Supper in the Great Hall for parents and friends before the school play in November.

This article traced the growth of Shaver Poultry Breeding Farms Ltd., from its beginning after the war to its present position as Canada's largest breeder of hybrid chickens with worldwide subsidiaries.

Geography Lives

Although the recollection of it is dim, I can recall a geography class in elementary school in Ireland where a teacher required us to learn the names of all the counties and chief towns in our provinces. The two long lists of place-names were imposingly placed on the blackboard, and threatened by a cane waving lady, we were to learn these by rote — a difficult task, particularly when she did not tell us the purpose of it, nor require from us any real application of the knowledge once it was committed to memory. I am sure many of you were subjected to this old "capes and bays" type of geography. As you progressed into secondary education geography perhaps became "a bland little travellogue" or you remember it as a "dull professor staring at the ceiling and droning on about cotton production statistics in the Mississippi Valley". Consequently, most adults who bumped into this dusty subject believe that geography rates about as high, in terms of relevance to the real world, as a second grade course in permanship.

What should geography be at Ridley? Numerous labels could be attached, but in the end, they all boil down to the inter-relationship of two very dynamic subjects: Man and His Home Planet. It studies the reasons for human existence. The types of earth systems. Systems that have produced an environment in which people can live and human systems that are destroying the ecosystem. The transcendent principle which permeates the function of the geography teacher is the development among his disciples, of personal skills and of attitudes of solidarity towards mankind and the powers of nature. For, in the young student, he envisions the responsible citizen of tomorrow as nature's partner. This then should be geography's contribution to the chief business of education, i.e. the preparation of students for successful living. Can there be anything more relevant? Anything less, I feel, might tend to justify the dropping out from school many of our intelligent young people.

Having established our aims, how does the Ridley Geography Department attempt to instill these into our students? Increasingly, our students are being motivated to find out facts through their own investigation. Our subject originated from man's curiosity about the world. Youth, above all, possess this curiosity to a high degree and we are fortunate to have this "built in" interest on which to capitalize. The kind of geography

we teach in our classroom and the method by which we teach it should not be a thirdhand, generalized account of what someone else has thought out. Rather, it should consist of first hand materials that the pupils use to think through to their own generalizations. We would think it a strange math book that presented all the problems fully worked out and solved — with the pupil's role restricted to memorizing what someone else had done. In the past geography has done exactly this. In short, instead of talking about geographical things, we are now trying to do geographical things.

Some examples which highlighted last year's efforts included a Vth form urban land use survey of St. Catharines. Some 70 students went out and mapped every building in the city according to its function. They observed the quality and character of their area and correlated this data with occupational statistics. By themselves, they discovered the facts and these provided the raw material for the creative thinking and discussion that was to follow. VIA students were skeptical about pollution problems until they saw and smelled it in the Old Welland aCnal. Their solutions were fatuous until they discussed the problem with local industrialists. Realism in geography then is vital and field work should be the method to achieve it. When this is not possible most of the department budget is spent on films, slides, overheads, filmstrips, photographs, topographic maps, books, and magazines etc., available as secondary source materials. The renewal of these materials is an expensive proposition as they become rapidly out of date and obsolete in our fast and ever-changing world.

So far I have not mentioned the teacher: upon whom rests the success or failure of even the best planned courses. At Ridley, the geography teachers are as diverse as the subject itself. Harry Mahon, an M.A. graduate from New Zealand is widely travelled and is bringing to Vth and VIB classes considerable background experience. Carl Dorland, previous Head of Geography, put the Department on a sound footing during his tenure. He will again be teaching geography this year to IVth form classes. Yours truly, an Irish immigrant, completes the Upper School team.

The major load of teaching in the Lower School is carried by Brian Tuckfield, a transplanted Australian. He is ably assisted by Bill Smy and Rick Coy.

This year 80 IVth formers will be studying Eurasia and man's adaptation to the environments of this area. While 65 Vth formers will be tackling the course entitled "Man and the Changing Earth". The VIB course will provide about 60 students with the opportunity to obtain an in depth knowledge of the methods and values of regional studies. 25 students in VIA will be studying the economical geography of Canada and hopefully will develop a better appreciation of the Canadian economy. In the end, in spite of all our efforts, I am sure we will have many geography "funnies" perpetrated by our students during tests and examinations. Some past examples include "physical factors have made it difficult to use the rivers of Siberia because they flow backwards" or "the polder lands are lands reclaimed from the sea". There is a large hole dug in the water . . .

Prior to being appointed Lower School Nurse, she was nursing in the Pediatric Department of the St. Catharines General Hospital. She will reside in the Lower School.

H. Edward MacMahon, M.D., M.R.C.P., Sc.D.

Ted MacMahon attended Ridley from 1912 to 1919. He is a nephew of the late H. G. Williams, first Head Master of the Lower School. A dinner in his honour was held by his colleagues in Andover, Massachusetts, on last 10 April to mark his relinquishing the chairmanship of the Department of Pathology of the Medical and Dental Schools of Tufts University in Boston and the position of Pathologist-in-Chief of the Tufts - New England Medical Centre. He had held these appointments for forty years. At the dinner, it was announced that the MacMahon Testimonial Fund had been established for the H. Edward MacMahon Scholarship Fund to be used for students in the Medical School.

Among Ted's achievements at Ridley were a School Prefect-ship, Captain of the Cricket XI, of which he was a member for two years, winning the Junior Cross Country Race and the General Proficiency in Form V. He graduated in medicine from the University of Western Ontario and interned in London, Ontario, Montreal and Boston. He also did post-graduate work in Germany, during which time he perfected his theories on autopsy performance. He is one of the few pathologists who has passed the examinations of the Royal College of Physicians. He was an early Diplomat of the American Board of Pathology, and he was given the degree of Doctor of Science (honoris causa) by Tufts University. During his life-time of teaching and administering, he published over one hundred scientific papers on every aspect of anatomic pathology. His paper on "The Growing Potential of Autopsy in Medicine" is now a medical classic. He is, perhaps, best known for his work on the liver, the kidney and the lung.

In the June, 1970, issue of THE ARCHIVES OF PATHOLOGY, appeared a lengthy article on Dr. Ted MacMahon. The following quotations from it form a fitting tribute to this very distinguished Old Boy of Ridley:

"... He was never afraid to say that he did not know, and, if he made a mistake, he was the first to recognize it..."

"His wide experience has, beyond question, made him one of the country's most accomplished histological pathologists."

Dr. H. Edward MacMahon (19) with his son D'Arcy at the School in September.

He "is known for his courage, generosity and his very sincere interest in his students, internes and residents... a modest gentleman at all times... an inability to endure the pompous, who, in his presence, are often annihilated with such urbane delicacy that they fail to notice their own executions... He has combined his successful professional career with a happy marriage to a charming wife and their four children."

In conclusion, we offer two quotations from Ted's own words as he spoke to a recent graduating class:

"I have learned that your family must come first and then, and only then, will your practice take care of itself. And I have learned that marriage to a cause, or to an institution, is a poor substitute for the real thing."

"One last word: to your family, to your colleagues, to your patients and to yourself be true."

Bermuda Cricket Association - Visit to Ridley

A team selected by the Bermuda Cricket Association arrived at the middle of August for a ten day tour of Ontario and Quebec.

Ridley welcomed the visitors on August 20th for a match versus the Hamilton and District Cricket League. A late afternoon thunderstorm spoiled what promised to be a very good match and the game ended in a draw.

The following day the Bermudians were able to see the School and visit the Niagara Peninsula. W. F. (Chummy) Hayward, M.B.E. (father of David Hayward O.R. '60 and Ken Hayward O.R. '64) organised the tour and accompanied the team as manager.

The late Ed. Burn was for many years connected with Bermuda cricket — as coach, organiser and manager of B.C.A. tours to England. His endeavours were recognized by Bermuda of a beautiful sea-shell map of the island, suitably inscribed, cricketers when a presentation was made to the Headmaster in memory of Ed. Burn. This will be placed in the Auty Cricket Library at the Upper School.

It is now thirteen years since a Ridley Eleven visited Bermuda and Mr. Hayward has invited the School team to visit the island for a series of matches in 1971. It is hoped that arrangements can be made for the School team to go immediately after the school year ends in June.

It was a great pleasure to have the Bermuda group at Ridley and we hope they will come back again.

Forty Years On

For the greater part of the summer ten Ridley boys and Peter Orme, Ridley Music Director, have been involved in the production of Alan Bennett's play "Forty Years On" at the Shaw Festival, Niagara-on-the-Lake. The total of seventeen boys was made up by boys from other schools in St. Catharines, from Trinity College School, Port Hope and The Nichols School, Buffalo.

The setting of the play is the last day of the academic year at a British Public School. The Headmaster is about to retire after forty years service and the staff and boys present an end of term play. Many of the boys developed quite commendable English accents and if I could sum up their contribution to the production it would be to say that their performance was the most consistent of all the cast and that they really did develop as a unit; that is, as the boys of Albion House School.

For most of us this was our first experience of working in professional theatre. The boys had to learn patience during very long rehearsals especially when required to sit around waiting for the principals to rehearse small scenes in detail. They had to learn the self discipline of waiting quietly in the wings, being on time for their entrances, controlling their exuberant imaginations in adhering to rehearsed patterns of action and reaction, and above all to concentrate on maintaining the high standard of performance on opening night through forty-eight more performances. Apart from one or two small lapses they achieved all these things and they certainly win my praise and congratulations.

A small highlight of the season was the service at St. Mark's Church which was sung by the boys on Sunday, 30 August. The boys were organized into a small four part choir and considering that over half of them had never sung parts in a choir before, their performance of responses, anthem and the other parts of the service was quite remarkably good.

I am sure that we all learned a great deal from being so closely connected with a professional production. It is now my earnest hope that we can capitalize on this experience in our work at Ridley and raise our school's cultural status. Theatre, music and art are an important part of life and the third paragraph of this brief essay should indicate the educational value of things cultural. And it has been fun; I can't imagine anything better — to learn and have fun doing it.

The Athletic Hall of Fame

This shrine of athletic endeavour is situated across from the grandstand on the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. In it are pictures and memorials of Canadian sports heroes in all fields of endeavour except football. The history of the latter game is to be displayed in a separate museum in another city. Among Ridley names to be found at the C.N.E. are the following:

GIL BOA (Parent) — five times small-bore shooting champion of Canada — holder of the world title in 1954 (598 out of a possible 600).

C. ROSS (SANDY) SOMERVILLE (21) — selected 'The Outstanding Golfer of the Half Century' by the Canadian Press in 1950.

ROBERT M. McFARLANE (45) — awarded the Lou Marsh Trophy in 1950 for achievements on the running-track.

JAMES G. THOMPSON (44) — designer of Miss Super-tests II and III, winners of the Harmsworth Trophy for propeller-driven boats in 1959, 1960 and 1961, the latter of which reached 184.24 m.p.h.
